

ABSTRACT

A golf training lens comprises a thin transparent sheet of low light transmitting plastic with a row of transparent horizontal cut lines and two rows of transparent vertical cut lines. When attached to the brim of a cap, the device creates a single distinct horizontal visual guide line and a single distinct vertical visual guide line. These lines and their intersection create a ball center point, a shot path, a club face alignment guide, a foot alignment guide and a swing guide.